

Some additional remarks

IV. The Role and Contribution of the Partners to the Studies

As described up to now the Tübinger researchers provides a core text, which reflects a more general and comparative top down view on each country. To tackle the specific aspects and the practical/political questions a second pillar is needed. Here our partners are asked to provide special informations and data, to raise questions about their problems or introduce interesting solutions. So the top down process is combined with a bottom up process.

By using an internet platform (ILIAS) with many functions and levels it is easier to organise a process in form of a dialog, of input texts and amendments, of questions and answers etc. than by writing a book – and reading it afterwards.
